Cleardata Receives ISO27001 Accreditation

Cleardata has been awarded BSI's ISO27001 accreditation – the highest accreditation for Information Security Management Systems.

As a comprehensive provider of document management solutions, Cleardata helps companies of all types keep their records and information secure, while lowering costs and freeing up space. The award from the BSI shows that information security is central to everything that Cleardata do.

Document scanning, secure archive storage and online document management solutions, together with intelligent data capture are all provided by Cleardata.

The accreditation will provide further reassurance to clients who use Cleardata's document scanning services. For businesses and organisations within finance, the NHS and other healthcare establishments, public and IT sectors, Cleardata's ability to ensure data is secure is of the highest importance.

The ISO27001 accreditation demonstrates Cleardata's capacity for handling documents using Information Security Management Systems. It also demonstrates that the company has implemented the required processes in its operation, monitoring, maintenance and improvement procedures.

Managing Director of Cleardata, Dave Bryce, said: "This accreditation gives our customers absolute confidence that our business will protect their data to the highest standards and the knowledge that this is audited by an independent body. The use of BSI, a brand that is synonymous with British Standards was an important factor in the choice of our auditors.

With many high profile examples and incidents in the media, our clients are becoming ever more careful of their choice of supplier, with security and quality upper most in their minds. This complements our ISO9001 quality management award."

Andrew Morris, EMEA Business Development Director said "BSI is delighted that Cleardata has chosen to add certification to the Information Security standard to its existing quality certificate. In doing so they have not only met best practice in the security of their information and that of their clients, but they are now able to prove to their clients that they are dealing with an supplier that meets the very highest of standards."
